Some talent shows like to accept people who just aren't very good. The organizers think TV audiences enjoy seeing someone who sings out of tune or plays an instrument badly. In my opinion, it's really unfair to put participants in a position where people make fun of them. An experience like that could make them less confident in their daily lives. I always feel sorry for contestants who are standing on stage and crying in front of the cameras. It's not fair to encourage people who have no real talent to appear in such programmes.

Do you have a unique talent or an unusual skill that you would like to share with others? Can you recite the alphabet backwards while juggling oranges? Or rap the song "Call Me Maybe" while standing on your head? Perhaps you can sing like Bart Simpson? Whatever your talent may be, WE NEED YOU! If we like your performance, we'll invite you to come and surprise everybody with your skills at our Town Talent Show. Visit our website to find out how you can apply.

One day I thought: "Why don't we have our own school talent show?" I went to our head teacher with the idea, and he was very keen on it. So, I got down to work and asked some of my schoolmates to give me a hand. We put up posters and every student who was interested could take part in the auditions. I also asked some teachers to be the judges. On the day of the show, I was the host. It was so much fun to watch everybody sing, dance, juggle and do other brilliant things.

While I was growing up, I had different hobbies but most of all I loved painting. My parents expected me to become an engineer so they didn't like me spending so much time painting. Luckily, my next-door neighbour, John Smith, realized that I had a natural talent. He spoke with my parents and suggested I should go to art school. At first they responded negatively, but then they changed their minds and supported me. Mr. Smith is here with us today, so I'd like to say again how grateful I am to him. Without his help, I wouldn't be where I am today.

I've had a fantastic time selecting the best story of the year. We received thousands of great entries, and the stories this year took me on all sorts of different adventures. Reading them all was such a pleasure! But the best story really fascinated me. Its author showed unusually creative writing skills! So, the moment everybody has been waiting for has finally come. Ladies and gentlemen, this year's Young Writer's Award goes to…

A building which is a copy of the White House is for sale. To buy it all you need is $5 million. That may sound like a lot of money, but it's a bargain compared to the real White House, which is worth about $110 million! The copy of the White House is in Virginia, and it is smaller than the real White House. However, it has a full-sized Oval Office and Lincoln bedroom. Plans of the real White House were used to build this copy.

Hi, Mark. It's Sue. I'm calling about the school charity quiz we talked about yesterday. The topic you suggested – famous artists and scientists – is great. Now we need to decide on some rules, for example the number of people in each team, or the price of the tickets – I think that £3 is fair. We still need to think about the best day for the quiz. And the most important thing – the quiz questions. The head teacher wants to see them as soon as possible, so this weekend I'll prepare the questions about artists and you could work on the ones about famous scientists. I don't think we should ask any other students to prepare them for us. Let me know what you think.

Man: Welcome to our weekly programme on creative ideas. Today our guest is Margaret Evans. Margaret, please tell our listeners what you do.

Woman: Hello everybody. Well, I help people to have comfortable and fashionable living spaces. I advise my clients on how they can decorate and equip their homes in line with the latest trends. I help them choose the best layout, colours, furniture and accessories for every room. In my free time I also run a blog about furnishing living spaces.

Man: So, let's imagine I've bought an apartment. I can't afford to spend much on furniture. What would your advice be?

Woman: Buy second hand furniture!

Man: And what should we pay attention to when buying used furniture?

Woman: Well, if possible I ask the seller to lift up the furniture. Then I can see if there are any problems on the underside. Also, I always smell the furniture. You can easily remove or cover up paint stains. The same goes for oily spots. But it's almost impossible to make bad smells go away. You can try changing the material with which the sofa or the armchair is covered, but there's no guarantee that the problem will be solved.

Man: I see. Is there anything else you'd like to share with our listeners?

Woman: Well, yes. There are a few things to remember when you go to the home of someone you don't know to look at a piece of used furniture. First, don't go there alone. It's best to take a friend with you. And visit the seller during the day, not at night. Finally, if you're not comfortable carrying cash, you can make the payment online using your phone or computer.

Man: Hi, Sophy.

Woman: Hi, Tom. I've talked to the coach, and he told me that there will be 2 more parents going to the championship match with the children.

Man: So, 12 parents altogether?

Woman: Correct. And we have a total of £120 to spend on something to make us all stand out from the crowd. I thought about T-shirts, but it would be hard to get the right sizes for everybody. So, what do you think about buying baseball caps?

Man: That's a great idea.

Woman: I've found a website where we can order personalized sports clothing, including caps. Will you help me fill in the order form?

Man: Sure.

Woman: First we have to choose the colour. Our team colours are red and blue. So…. maybe light blue caps? They'll look good.

Man: Hmm… I'm not sure. What about dark blue caps with the team logo in red? That would be better, I think.

Woman: OK, sounds good. Now I just have to upload the team logo. Done!

Man: Do the caps come in different sizes?

Woman: Yes, the size codes are SCS for children, TCS for teenagers and GXL for grown-ups. We obviously need GXL for the parents. The price is £8 per item. That's £96 for the whole order.

Man: Great! What about delivery?

Woman: Oh, right. I forgot about that. Standard delivery is £10 and next-day delivery is twice as much. Which one should I choose?

Man: Choose the faster option. We've got enough money. And we don't want to risk the caps not arriving in time for the match.

Woman: You're right.
